THE MAINE ALUMNUS

DECEMBER, 1942

Christmas Wishes

To our men in the Solomons, Australia, Africa, Ireland, Iceland, Hawaii, and other distant battle fronts a simple message of best wishes for the holiday season means more than they can express in words. The University and the Alumni Association are sharing together the responsibility of conveying the greetings of the season to Maine alumni in service.

President Hauck is sending a letter to every one of the more than 1200 men and women in uniform.

The Alumni Association is mailing to each one a complete list of his fellow alumni known to be in the service.

Each week copies of the Maine Campus are mailed to nearly 400 former members of the classes now in college and those of 1942.

Each month more than a thousand copies of the Alumnus are sent to alumni who are serving with the Army, Navy, and the Marines.

Fraternities, major departments, and campus organizations are also expressing their best wishes by letter and card to our service men and women.

The one source of information on which all of these best wishes depend is the list of names and addresses carried in the Alumni office. You can help us by sending the names of alumni in service to 11 Fernald Hall, Orono, Maine. We particularly need information concerning younger alumni and those who were recently inducted.

MAINE's Reserve Officers Training Corps has already provided from former students of advanced and basic classes more than 700 commissioned officers for the nation's armed forces. This year it is busily training in the latest principles of military science some 850 more prospective leaders and soldiers to take their places more efficiently in the necessary work of war—the largest registration of students in its long history.

Of the present group 154 men are in the advanced junior and senior courses. Shortly after their graduation the seniors will be commissioned Second Lieutenants in the Army. The ROTC has always been recognized as an important source of these vitally needed junior officers. At the same time the basic training given to every physically qualified man in the freshman and sophomore classes provides valuable instruction in modern military principles. The hours of drill and classroom study under the capable and understanding leadership of the officers stationed on the campus is preparing these men for the service of their country and giving them training which will help many of them to positions of leadership in the services or to officers training.

Signal Corps

The ROTC at Maine now consists of three units. The traditional infantry training has been supplemented for several years by a course in Coast Artillery for Technology students and this summer work in basic and advanced Signal Corps training was added. Under the direction of Captain Pierre Purcell students in electrical engineering or engineering physics and others electing courses in electronics study the operation and maintenance of radio, telegraph, and telephone communication equipment, electronic detection devices, and other work of the Signal Corps.

The Signal Corps bears the fundamental responsibility of carrying the messages of the Army. For communication from headquarters to combat units, between the various participating units in the field, from airplane to ground command, and even from tank to tank the Signal Corps provides and maintains communication equipment and in many cases operates such equipment. Complete courses in this work have been organized at the University for all four classes. The basic training includes individualized class work on Signal Corps problems and equipment, though the drill periods and general military fundamentals are practically the same as for other units.

Training

In the advanced courses the men take intensified work in the well-equipped laboratory of the unit in Aubert Hall. Here the men familiarize themselves with "walkie-talkie" sets for the infantry, with other radio apparatus, with radio detection devices for aircraft interception, with field telephone sets, and other operating units of the Corps. This year the new unit expects to commission 6 seniors after graduation and is training 13 juniors, 34 sophomores, and 48 freshmen. The ultimate goal of the advanced work is 35 juniors and seniors in training annually.

In the ROTC today everything is geared to the needs of war and kept as far as possible in constant touch with the fast moving developments of world events. New problems of strategy, innovations in tactics on the far-flung battle fronts, or fundamental changes in the system of supply are brought into the classroom by the instructors to supplement the text books. The books themselves are revised and brought up to date yearly.

Modern equipment, too, is made as far as possible a part of the training. This summer a new 40 mm automatic cannon was received for use of the coast artillery students. This excellent piece of modern ordnance is a dual purpose anti-aircraft and anti-tank gun firing 120 rounds per minute and equipped with automatic fire control.

The Infantry unit has a number of M-1 rifles, popularly known as the Garand semi-automatic, for study. Practice in the assembly and operation of these modern instruments of fire power may some day be a matter of life or death to the soldier in the field.

Training is in the hands of a staff of eight officers and ten enlisted men. Three of the officers are alumni of Maine. First Lieutenant Carleton Payson '41 is in the Infantry unit and First Lieutenant Lawrence Kelley '41 instructs in Coast Artillery. Newest arrival to the campus is First Lieutenant Samuel Tracy '41 who took up his new work on November 23 when Lieutenant Colonel Leigh Be'l was transferred to Boston for duties at the Port of Embarkation.

In charge of the ROTC is Colonel Francis R. Fuller who has been Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Maine since the summer of 1941. Major Herbert Ingraham is in charge of the work of the Coast Artillery unit.

In addition to the training activities of

Three Alumni Win Re-elections

Three alumni won re-election campaigns in the recent political contests, two for second terms in the U S Congress and one to the Massachusetts State Senate.

For Federal service the voters again chose H Styles Bridges '18, former Governor of New Hampshire, to serve in the Senate and Frank Fellows '12 of Bangor for the House of Representatives from the Third District. In Massachusetts John D Mackay '00 was named by the voters of the Norfolk District to his thirteenth successive year in the state Senate.

Senator Bridges from New Hampshire, regarded as one of the coming leaders of the Republican Party, followed a successful career as Governor of New Hampshire by election to the Senate in 1936. His six years in Washington were highlighted in 1940 when his name was placed in nomination before the Republican National Convention as a presidential candidate. His record in the Senate has been one of progressive and far-sighted leadership. He has been second ranking member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, one of the most important committees at this time. He has also served on the Committee on Appropriations.

Election of Congressman Fellows followed his first term at Washington to which he was named in 1940. Long an outstanding lawyer in Maine, member of the firm of Fellows and Fellows, his election in 1940 marked his first venture into public political office. His reelection confirms the high opinion held of him by the voters. At Washington he has served on House Committees concerned with Roads, Civil Service, and Executive Department Expenditures.

In Massachusetts the re-election of law school graduate John D. Mackay '00 to the State Senate has become almost a regular occurrence for the voters of the Norfolk District. He was first named to the legislature in 1929 and has remained CONGRESSMEN: Two alumni have just been elected to second terms in the U. S. Congress. From New Hampshire H. Styles Bridges '18, left, has again been named to the Senate. Frank Fellows '12 of Bangor, right, has been elected to a second term in the House of Representatives.

New Bequest Received

The University will receive a total bequest of $250,000 from the estate of Mrs. Anne Stodder who died in Bangor October 25, 1942. Of this amount $50,000 becomes immediately available with the balance to be paid later at the termination of a trust fund. Mrs. Stodder named the University as the largest benefactor of her estate which is reported to approximate one million dollars.

Long known as a kindly, generous and philanthropic person, Mrs. Stodder had been largely responsible for the success of many fund campaigns in the city. Her gifts were extensive and varied. She was modest and retiring. Most of her gifts were made quietly and her many kindnesses and help to individuals were known to few persons. Particularly was she sympathetic to appeals to alleviate human suffering.

Mrs. Stodder was a native of Bangor and attended Wellesley College after which she returned to that city where she spent the remainder of her life except for periods of extensive travel. Her husband, James C. Stodder, died in 1917, leaving over $200,000 in trust which is now being distributed to various Bangor institutions. During her active life she held numerous positions of philanthropic trust. The breadth of her interests was reflected in her will which is regarded as one of the most remarkable ever filed in Penobscot County if not in the entire state. Twenty-two colleges, schools, hospitals, religious and other societies, in addition to a large number of individuals, were named as beneficiaries.

Mrs. Stodder is known to have assisted a number of University students financially. Her desire to continue to render such help is reflected in her bequest of $50,000 to the University "the principal to be kept intact and safely invested and the income of which shall be used for the assistance of needy and deserving students—under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the proper authorities of said University."

Again in the bequest providing for the $200,000, Mrs. Stodder has shown her generosity and thoughtfulness by giving this fine gift without restrictions as to use of income. That part of the will reads, "—I direct that the said principal fund shall always be kept intact, that it be known as the Anne E. Stodder Fund, and that the income only be used for the general purposes of said University."

there through every election since. Previous to his election he served as City Solicitor for Quincy where he lives. He has also served on the School Committee of Quincy and as its chairman. In the Senate he has been chairman of the Committee on Insurance, on Election Laws, and on the Judiciary Committee.

COLONEL ARCHELAUS L. HAMBLÉN '16, recently of Washington, D. C., helped to make pleasant headlines for Americans last month when he shared in a daring reconnaissance trip through French North Africa with General M. W. Clark to prepare the way for the triumphant landing of American forces there. Colonel Hamblén, better known to alumni as "Archie," was one of four American officers to accompany General Clark on the historic and adventurous secret mission. All volunteered for the dangerous assignment.

Landing on the African shore from a submarine at night in response to a signal light, the party met important French officers and officials. There they were able to obtain valuable military information with particular reference to the attitudes of the local leaders and people. Nearly discovered by the police, they crouched in a wine cellar "uncertain whether to bribe them or shoot them" as General Clark described it. When the police left, the group emerged in possession of information which made it possible to evaluate in advance the success of the invasion which wrested the initiative from Hitler on November 7.

The remainder of the trip took Colonel Hamblén and his fellow officers across the entire sprawling area of French North Africa and brought them into numerous other exciting and sometimes humorous predicaments. They travelled by every possible means of transport, hiding in woods or cellars as need demanded. They lost, at one point, most of their clothing and $18,000 in gold when a boat upset. The midnight conferences, hairbreadth escapes, and final success of the eight-day adventure read like episodes of sensational fiction. The final accomplishment of the mission by "Archie" Hamblén, his command, and companions was in large measure responsible for the subsequent swift occupation of the region by American troops.

Long Service

Colonel Hamblén, a native of Gorham, has served in the Army since his graduation in 1916. In World War I he was captain of a machine gun in France. He was promoted to the rank of Major at the age of 22. He served at one time as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Arkansas. During the present war he was on duty until recently with the Supply Division of the War Department General Staff in Washington.

On land, sea, and in the air, Maine alumni are on the march with the forces of the United Nations. New names added to the list of those in service are given below.

ADVENTURE: Col. A. L. Hamblén '16 volunteered with three other officers to accompany Gen. M. W. Clark through North Africa last month to pave the way for American invasion.

Edward E. Chase '13 Heads N. E. Council

Edward E. Chase, a graduate of the University, Class of 1913 and President of the University Board of Trustees, was honored by election as President of the New England Council at a meeting of the directors of that organization held last month. Mr. Chase has been a member and director of the New England Council for several years and recently served as chairman of the Maine division. The New England Council is an organization composed of the leaders in the industrial, commercial, agricultural and educational life of the six states. It works on problems of common interest and concern to all and secures and disseminates useful data and information.

Mr. Chase has been a member of many committees in the State of Maine and in New England. Among other activities he is now serving as co-chairman of the State Victory Bond Committee and chairman of the Naval Officer Procurement Committee.

His name has been prominently identified with the Alumni Association and the University ever since his return from service in the First World War. He is a past President of the Cumberland County Alumni Association, chairman of both Memorial Fund Campaigns in that area, and for several years was a member and officer of the Alumni Council until 1929.

An editorial in the Portland Press Herald, November 20, pays a fine tribute to Mr. Chase as follows:

"For years Maine has been represented in the New England Council. Now Maine supplies the new president—the first one it has had—in the person of Mr. Edward E. Chase of Portland. The Council made no mistake in electing Mr. Chase. He has had long experience in the financial life of Maine, he has been a member of the Legislature, he is now chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of Maine, he has achieved deserved recognition as a writer upon economic and historical subjects, and is the author of a History of Maine Railroads. Wherever he is known, and that is not only Maine but our whole Northeast and even beyond, he is known as a clear thinker, a forceful speaker who, with occasional flashes of pungent humor and dry wit, bases clear argument upon a fund of knowledge that makes him a formidable person in debate. He is thoroughly conversant with New England's enterprises and problems and with the work and objectives of the New England Council. In this difficult time he is a natural choice as a leader, more than adequately equipped to carry on along the paths marked out by his distinguished predecessors. Maine will feel honored to have one of its citizens at the head of this valuable New England Council, and it will look forward with confidence to Mr. Chase's incumbency."

Service Names

The General Alumni Association is anxious to have a complete list of all graduates and former students who are in the Service. Please send to the Association the names of alumni who are known to be in the Service, especially those who may have entered recently.

Recruits—

Enlistments in the college reserve programs of the armed services were facilitated last month as enlistment boards from the Army and the Navy made visits to the campus to help students undergo the process of enlistment, physical exams, air corps mental tests and other details. In addition to the enlistments handled by the visiting boards a brisk business in student enlistments is reported also from the ROTC Armory where the military staff is performing the same service. According to all reports selected students of high quality, approved by the services and the University as prospective officer material are taking advantage of the enlistment opportunities in increasing numbers. Chief advantage of the reserve programs is the likelihood of preferred position in officer training opportunities. Enlisting will continue through the month of December according to present information.

Radio—

The University Band broadcast its first radio concert of the year over WLBZ, Bangor, on Nov. 19 at 9:30 p.m. The program was conducted by Irving Devoe of Bangor.

ELECTED: Edward E. Chase of Portland was recently named President of the New England Council.

Speaker—

Wing Commander R. Ashley Hall of the British R.A.F. spoke on campus Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and 2 as the guest of the Assembly Committee. During the regular University assembly period on Nov. 30 he discussed "University Life in War Time England." Other appointments during his visit included talks before engineering organizations, lectures to classes in technology and advanced military, and discussion meetings with interested students and faculty members.

At present Wing Commander Hall is in charge of all existing British University Air Squadrons, an important part of the English air training program. He holds this post as a staff member of the Air Ministry. Formerly he was in charge of a balloon squadron in naval defense, and before the war was in a bombing group.

Military—

Four seniors and thirty-one juniors were named to Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, last month from the advanced students of the three branches of ROTC: Coast Artillery, Infantry, and Signal Corps. By unanimous vote of the active members the following men were chosen for the initiation during November 23 to 25: INFANTRY: Bertis Pratt, Jr., of Caribou and Robert Weisman of Portland, seniors. Juniors, William Brown of Portland, Sumner Burgess of Sangeville, Theodore Fettingner of Saco, Donald Goodwin of Brewer, Alfred Hutchinson of Danvers, Mass., Raymond Jones of Bangor, Clarence McIntire of Portland, Merton Meloon of Kezar Falls, Albert Murch of South Casco, Robert Nutter of Sanford, Carroll Richardson of Oakland, Edward Sims of Moosup, Conn., Philip Sweetser of Cumberland Center, John Whitten of Fort Kent, Willard Johns of Maplewood, N.J., and Frank Squires of Medford, Mass.

COAST ARTILLERY: seniors, George Clifford of Boothbay Harbor, Fred Heibolzheim of Wakefield, Mass. Juniors, Clyde Braley of Auburn, Richard Burrill of Dexter, Philip Cabot of Winchester, Mass., Josiah Colcord of South Portland, William Cullen of Auburn, Alvin McNeilly of Brookline, Mass., Philip Miller of Portland, Leon White of Bangor, and Jean Hufnagel of Bucksport.

SIGNAL CORPS: juniors, George Bagley of Orono, Leslie Brewer of Bar Harbor, Charles Jewett of Brookline, Mass., Kenneth Jordan of Ellsworth, Gerald Keenan of Mars Hill, and George McLean of Bangor.

Campers—

Twenty seniors in Forestry made their annual trek to the north woods November 30 for the regular program of practical woods work at the University's Forestry Camp near Princeton, Maine.

ENGINEERING, Science, and Management War Training—the program of the U. S. Department of Education for training and up-grading of adults in needed war skills—is today an important contribution which colleges all over the country are making to the war effort. At seven institutions Maine alumni are sharing similar responsibilities as directors of E S M W T, helping to plan, organize, and administer what may well be considered subsequently as one of the most significant educational trends of the war period.

Professor Benjamin Kent '12 at Maine; Professor Walter D. Emerson '16 at Norwich in Vermont, Dean Harry P. Burden '11 at Tufts College, Medford, Mass. and Professor Raymond D. Douglass '15 at M. I. T. who is also in charge of coordinating the college programs in greater Boston, comprise a New England quartet of War Training Institutional Representatives who have made outstanding accomplishments. At Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N. Y., H. Russell Beatty '27 directs the program, as does Dean Fred J. Lewis '14 at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. Clyde A. McKee '23 serves in like capacity at Case School in Cleveland, Ohio.

The aim of the E S M W T program is to provide tuition-free, college level courses under the direction of the institution to enable as many people as possible to train for work of value to the war effort. Courses are offered both on and off campus wherever a qualified instructor is available and sufficient qualified students are interested in a particular subject to form a class. High school graduation is usually a prerequisite.

The range of courses offered by various colleges is wide. The list is carefully adapted to the actual, practical conditions of the area. The acceptance of these opportunities by the public as revealed by registration figures has been enthusiastic. For instance the four Maine alumni directing the program in New England report some 7,500 persons who have already completed courses offered by their colleges besides other thousands who will do so this year.

Not only are the Institutional Representatives in charge of the programs helping to prepare men and women for direct and immediate contribution to the manpower needs of the war effort, but at the same time they are assisting in an adult education program certain to be of lasting value to the nation.

Maine

The war training programs at the various institutions participating are basically the same. That given at Maine under the direction of Professor Benjamin Kent provides a good cross section of the work of his fellow alumni in similar positions of responsibility. The work was begun in September, 1941, with an offering of 12 engineering subjects in 17 classes. Last year 55 classes in 24 different subjects were given. Among the courses taught were engineering drafting, surveying, accounting, personnel management, mathematics, physics, and radio. Mechanical engineering subjects, chemistry and chemical engineering, foremanship training, safety engineering, power problems were offered as occasion demanded. This year the program will be even larger, it is expected, than last year, especially from the number of women students who will be enrolled.

An important part of the program at Maine under Professor Kent's general supervision is that of training ordnance inspectors and radio technicians for the Army. These men and women, selected by Civil Service examination, take full-time, intensive courses on the campus.

Professor Kent has been on the faculty of the University since 1918 where he is now head of the department of engineering drawing. After graduation from Maine in 1912 he served one year on the campus as instructor, then taught at Portland high school and Bangor high school.

In 1938 he was elected to a term on the Bangor City Council, serving until 1941. He is active in campus work, being at present chairman of the Advisory Board of the M. C. A. He is also well known in Masonry, being a past grand master of the grand council. His two daughters Jean and Rachel are graduates of the University and his son Edward is a senior this year.

Vermont

Professor Walter D. Emerson '16, Head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., is in charge of the War Training program in part of the Green Mountain State. Twenty-seven courses in ten cities of the state have been given under his direction. Especially outstanding have been courses in Industrial Engineering, Production Supervision, Time and Motion Study, and Foreman Training.

Professor Emerson taught one year at the University of New Hampshire, a year in Springfield, Vt high school, then served from 1918 to 1924 as Instructor and Assistant Professor in Mechanical Engineering at Maine. He went to Norwich in 1924 and was named to his present position as head of Mechanical Engineering in 1940. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering society and was recently active in forming the Vermont Maine Alumni Association of which he is president.

Massachusetts

Dean Harry P. Burden '12, Dean of the School of Engineering at Tufts College, and Prof. Raymond D. Douglass '15, Professor of Mathematics at M.I.T., work together with other Boston institutions on the War Training program. Prof. Douglass is chairman of the committee on special training programs for the Boston area in addition to directing the many courses offered by M.I.T.

The cooperation of the Boston institutions has made it possible to eliminate duplication and allot to each school the courses which it is best prepared to offer. The result is a program of outstanding success shared by each participating unit.

Tufts College has presented a number of advanced technical courses including Chemistry of Plastics and Rubber, Unit Operations in Chemical Engineering, Advanced Metallography and Heat Treatment, Advanced Structural Design, and Alloy Steels.

Dean Burden began his career at Tufts as Instructor in 1913. He served one year as an engineer with the U.S.D.A. in 1918, returning to Medford in 1919 as Assistant Professor of Civil Engineering. He was named Dean of Engineering in 1936. In addition to his degree from Maine he received the M.S. from Harvard in 1928 in Sanitary and Municipal Engineering.

The technical facilities of Massachusetts Institute of Technology provide especially valuable opportunities for the War Training program and under the direction of Professor Douglass are being used to the utmost. Last year 46 courses provided opportunity for 1,727 students who completed the work. It is estimated that training will be given this year to 3,000 students.

Prominent among the courses at M.I.T. are those for Naval officers, including Naval Architecture, Aircraft Engines, Aeronautical Engineering, and Ultrahigh-Frequency Technique. Civilian courses include mathematics, metallography, ordinance inspection, electronics, engineering drawing, chemistry of explosives, and safety engineering.

As chairman of the Boston group Prof. Douglass also has the responsibility of coordinating the entire area program involving an even wider variety of courses and thousands of students.

Dr. Douglass graduated from Maine in Mathematics in 1915 and served until 1918 as sub-master and principal of the high school at Brewster, Mass., and Franklin, N.H. In 1918-1919 he served as Deck Officer in the Navy with the rank of Ensign. He has been associated with the Institute since 1919. Since 1934 he has been director of the Summer School of the Institute. In addition to his work as Chairman of the Boston Training Programs he is State Coordinator of Radio Training and vice president of the Boston Center of Adult Education. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and in addition to B.A. and M.A. degrees from Maine holds a Ph.D. from M.I.T., 1931.

Brooklyn

As Head of the Department of Economics and Industrial Management at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N.Y., Professor H. Russell Beatty '27 directs 21 different War Training courses enrolling about 800 persons. Production Control and Methods, Safety Engineering, Time Study, Tool Design, Drafting, Materials Testing and Metallography are some of the courses offered. Several courses in Chemistry and Electro-Chemistry are available. Several courses in Teacher Training, especially mathematics and physics, are helping to meet the teacher shortages in these critical subjects. Pratt is also conducting a full-time day course of twenty weeks to train women as Chemical Engineering Aids.

Professor Beatty is a graduate in Mechanical Engineering. He was first employed with General Electric as a student engineer, then in industrial engineering, methods, and time study work. In 1933 he went to Remington Rand as a sales engineer in the systems division and from 1934 to 1937 served as superintendent of the motor division of the Holtzer Cabot Electric Co. He has been at Pratt Institute since the latter date. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi and active in the Y.M.C.A. His hobby, he writes, is farming. On his three-acre farm he keeps cows and poultry, in the time left to him after his many professional duties.

Tennessee

The Nashville, Tenn., area is served by War Training courses under the direction of Dean Fred J. Lewis '14, Dean and Professor of Civil Engineering at Vanderbilt University. Aircraft factories, chemical plants, and other war industries in the vicinity are especially served by the training. Some 2,000 persons have so far been enrolled in the courses under Dean Lewis' guidance, with about 350 in attendance this year.

Among the courses offered at Vanderbilt are Aeronautics, Industrial Purchasing, Production Management, Transportation Management, and the ever popular courses in drafting, radio, accounting, and mathematics.

A graduate in Civil Engineering, Dean Lewis taught two years at Penn State College, worked as a railroad office engineer, and served for a time as assistant engineer in Springfield, Mass., before serving with the Army Engineers in World War I. Following the war he again worked as assistant engineer in Springfield, then in 1919 went to Lehigh University as instructor and later assistant professor of Civil Engineering.

In 1925 he was appointed associate professor at Vanderbilt and in 1933 was named Dean. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi and Phi Kappa Phi honorary scholastic fraternities. He holds the M S degree in Civil Engineering from Penn State College.

Case School

Clyde A. McKeeman '27 is Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering, Chairman of the Evening Division, and Co-ordinator of Defense Training at Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio. In these various duties he has general supervision over some 1,500 persons receiving part-time training in the Cleveland area.

Some of the courses which Case has offered include Machine Design, Welding Laboratory, Internal Combustion Engines, Time and Motion Study, and Explosives. Other courses have trained inspectors, metallurgical laboratory technicians, and heat treaters.

The program at Case, in the midst of a varied and highly industrialized area of war production, is especially designed to meet the needs of industry for in-service training and up-grading of persons already employed as well as training new employees. The success of the cooperative venture is largely due to the work of Professor McKeeman. He is a graduate in Mechanical Engineering and holds the M S degree from Harvard School of Engineering received in 1931. He has been employed at Case since that date.

Thus in New England, New York, the South, and the Middle West, alumni teachers in technical institutions are performing important services in directing and coordinating the work of the E S M W T program. Their efforts and the work of the teachers under their supervision, many of them, too, alumni of Maine, are providing an important reservoir of trained man and woman power to keep the production lines manned and rolling until victory.

Speaker—

Armistice Day speaker at the University was Dr. Ralph Barton Perry of Harvard, Chairman of the American Defense Harvard Group. With him on the program were students Doris Bell '45 of Hopedale, Mass., and John Cullinan '43 of Norway. Dr. Perry discussed the value of post-war planning now as a contribution to the prosecution of the war effort.

The gentle art of poisoning for pleasure will be portrayed by the Maine Masque in their first performance of the year as they bring to the Little Theatre in December "Arsenic and Old Lace," Broadway comedy hit. Cast in the lead parts of the mystery comedy will be Isabell Ansell '45 of Dexter and Elizabeth Clough '44 of Auburn as the two charming Brewster sisters, maiden ladies who serve their arsenic with a difference. Others in the cast include Patricia de Weyer '45 of Farmington as Elaine Harper, Calvin Finar '45 of Fall River, Mass., as Mortimer Brewster, and James Haskell '44 of Hingham, Mass., as Teddy Brewster.

Grades—

Spring semester scholastic averages for the University showed a slight improvement over the fall semester last year in the regular fall announcement of University and organizational grades by Registrar James A. Gannett '08. Leading the list of fraternities in scholastic standing was Sigma Nu with an average of 2.47. Second in the list was Beta Theta Pi with 2.44, third, Phi Eta Kappa with 2.438.

Other fraternities ranked in the following order: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 2.41; Phi Kappa Sigma, 2.40; Alpha Gamma Rho, 2.394; Tau Epsilon Phi, 2.38; Lambda Chi Alpha, 2.36; Delta Tau Delta, 2.358; Theta Chi, 2.31; Alpha Tau Omega, 2.29; Phi Mu Delta, 2.27; Kappa Sigma, 2.25; Sigma Chi, 2.14; Phi Gamma Delta, 2.06.

At the annual Military Ball on November 27 students voted for Joyce Iveney of Eastport as Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the ROTC unit from a field of five junior class candidates. Nominated by members of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military society, the five competing coeds were Ruth Troland of Malden, Mass., Muriel Medina of Kennebunkport, Priscilla Hopkins of Waterville, Sally Ryan of Flushing, N. Y., and Joyce Iveney of Eastport. The winner was presented with her honorary commission before the crowd at the Ball during intermission by last year's elected Colonel, Senior Jennie Bridges of Calais.

the ROTC the staff is performing an important service to the students and to the institution by cooperating in the enlisting of students in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps. Colonel Fuller, as the representative of the Army, assists in selecting qualified students to enlist in the program, and the staff at the Armory has carried out the clerical work involved in the actual enlistment of students.

Sound Films

One of the most interesting recent developments in military training is the use of sound films for class room instruction. From an extensive film library maintained at the First Service Command headquarters in Boston, appropriate motion pictures covering different phases of training, tactics, equipment, and other principles can be borrowed. In this way students may see more vividly the operation of equipment which it would not be possible to have at the campus, such as heavy artillery, guns in fixed fortifications, or tanks. As an example of the opportunities made available through these moving pictures, the staff cites a recent film entitled "Weapons of the Infantry Division."

This film pictures the soldier on the receiving end of infantry weapon fire from rifle and machine gun up to 75 and 155 millimeter field cannon. The identification of weapons from firing report is vividly portrayed and the sounds of the various projectiles so that the soldier may become familiar with the different noises encountered under fire. This study enables him to learn to identify types of enemy weapons, estimate distances, and ascertain direction of fire. It also helps greatly in familiarizing the new soldier to some extent with battle conditions before he meets up with them under actual fire.

Perhaps the most obvious indication of modernization of the ROTC program at the University to alumni of a few years back is the change in the uniforms. Although developments in the campus soldier's wearing apparel are probably not as significant as many other trends, yet to alumni who well remember the clumsy, spiral puttees and high, tight coat collars of ten years ago, the uniforms of the present generation are a revelation. Long trousers have replaced the uncomfortable leg wrappings, and neat lapel coats trimmed in blue have taken the place of the "chokers" of former years. The old heavy, ankle-high boots have been replaced with neat brown oxfords.

This year for the first time heavy winter mackinaws will be issued to the campus unit. Out-door drill during the winter months is to be encouraged as extensively as possible to help in the overall program of conditioning and training the student as completely as possible for combat service. In connection with this aim of physical conditioning, regular physical training periods have been inaugurated for the advanced classes, while students of the basic courses take regular training under the department of physical education.

Mental, moral, and physical preparation for efficient service in the armed forces is the fundamental aim of the

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Bowdoin 12—Maine 6

Hopes for a State Series championship by the surprising Maine eleven last month following the defeat of Colby on October 31 were ended at Brunswick on November 7 as Bowdoin's fleet backs and aggressive line dominated the play all the afternoon to hold Maine scoreless until the last quarter. In the third period a deceptive lateral pass play twice brought scores to Bowdoin.

Maine's attack was stopped time after time—once on the five yard line. Bowdoin too, found the going hard most of the game. Maine held on the one yard line in the first half and again on the fourteen.

In the big third period a fumble by Maine was recovered by Bowdoin on Maine's twenty yard line. In one play Bowdoin secured the state title as a tackle play followed by a lateral carried the fleet-footed Bowdoin backs to a score. Five minutes later in the same period a partially blocked kick gave Bowdoin the ball on the forty-two yard line, again Bowdoin pushed down the field and finally with the same play as before, scored again.

Maine, determined to tally, fought back and after being stopped once on the five yard line forced Bowdoin to kick from the end zone. Nutter carried the ball to the Bowdoin thirty. On the third down Windy Work '45 of Bangor, who played an outstanding game, passed to Senior Al Edelstein for a first down. Lyford and Nutter then gained. Finally Work tossed a pass to the end zone where Garry Spens '45 scored. Maine threatened again with two minutes to play but was stopped on the sixteen yard line to see their hopes for the title vanish.

Of the letters which were awarded in varsity football, eight went to graduating seniors. The letter winners of the class of '43 were Al Edelstein of Sanford, Maurice Geneva of South Portland, Carl Goodchild of Saco, Ben Graham of Milton, Mass., Keith Grover of Norway, Bob Hay of Portland, Ed Robinson of Bronx-

ROTC unit As long as it is necessary for the nation to insure its destiny by force on the battlefields of the world, no other aim can be more important. Through the thorough training he receives on the campus and in training camp later, the soldier is made a more effective part of the country's fighting forces. And as a necessary part of this aim, the soldier learns better how to protect himself in battle and maintain himself as a fighting unit. For the principle of military leadership today is not that the soldier shall give his life for his country, but rather that he shall make the enemy give his.

ville, N. Y., and Richard Stratton of Reading, Mass.

The team paid tribute to the work of two juniors in electing them as co-captains for the past year. They were Robert Nutter of Sanford and Ray Neal of Portland.

Three Maine men were named on the Sunday Telegram's "All-State Team," the combined choices of coaches and scouts from the four colleges. Those named from Maine were Frank "Ray" Neal '44 of Portland as guard and the two sophomore backs, Winslow "Windy" Work of Bangor and Laurence "Bud" Lyford of Brewer.

VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY

STATE MEET Colby was the winner of the State cross country meet at Augusta on November 3 in a surprising win which had been conceded in advance to the University. The strong Colby team brought home the first three men of the race.

First Maine man to score was Phil Hamm who came in in 4th position followed by Dick Martinez in 7th and Elmer Folsom and Leo Estabrook in 8th and 9th.

NEW ENGLAND MEET Fourth place in the annual New England run came to Maine as Phil Hamm '43 placed fifth for individual honors while Rhode Island was winning both individual and team honors for first place. Other Maine men who placed among the 169 runners from 14 colleges were Leo Estabrook '43, Elmer Folsom '45, William Condon '44, and Richard Martinez '43.

NATIONALS Rhode Island again showed its cross country superiority by taking the IC4A title at New York on November 16. Maine, running with the best teams in the East, placed in seventh position with Phil Hamm again leading the Pale Blue barriers in 16th place. On the same day in the Freshman run the Maine Frosh were well represented by Aroosook's Champion, Malcolm Dempsey of Presque Isle, former national school boy champion. He placed second against the best freshman runners in the country. Running with him was Ted Wood of Newton Center, Massachusetts, who came in in 6th position.

SENIORS: Eight seniors won varsity football letters last month. Outstanding among them were, left to right, Maurice Geneva of So. Portland, at center; Edward Robinson of Bronxville, N. Y., a guard; and Keith Grover of Norway, a guard. A broken leg kept Grover out of play the last of the season but his stellar work in early games placed him among the team's best.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The biggest news in basketball this month was the change in the coaching staff to provide Coach Kenyon a rest this winter after his football work. As a result the former freshman coach, Sam Sezak '31, will take over varsity coaching. Freshman basketball will be coached by George W. Crowther, assistant professor of agricultural engineering.

Basketball practice opened for the varsity on Tuesday, November 17, with eight lettermen available from the team which last year played to a tie for the state championship. Among them are seniors Lloyd Quint, Richard McKeen, Eugene Hussey, and Bertis Pratt who have twice won their letters in the sport. Benjamin Curtis, Donald Presnell, John Whitten, and Leon White are also letter winners. From last year's successful freshman team some helpful additions to the squad are expected. In spite of loss by graduation of six outstanding players the prospects for a strong team look good. Those who graduated from the first team include Cliff Blake, Nat Crowley, Ike Downes, Don Kilpatrick, and Gene Leger.

Sezak has been on the coaching staff since 1939 and had several successful seasons with his freshman teams in football, basketball, and baseball. He also serves as assistant faculty manager of athletics.

He was coach at Washington State Normal School, Machias, until 1933, at Rockland until 1936, and at Fairhaven, Mass., until his appointment here.

Crowther, the new frosh coach, is a graduate of Cornell where he played varsity basketball. He also coached a high school team in the sport one season.

"The Portland officer has done such an outstanding piece of work in the Southeast that our commanding general is sending him to his home state for a similar enlistment program," Captain Sheffer said. "We have visited the leading cities of six southern states where Captain Couri has addressed big audiences and obtained thousands of enlistees. Now he will conduct a drive in Maine where he is well known to many of the citizens"

Captain Couri will visit his wife and daughter in Portland, and his brother who is in business there. He will then go to Boston and New York to take part in a similar program

His address is 4 So. 27th St., Lafayette, Indiana, and he requested that his Alumnus be sent there.

Major Henry Howard whose address has been Canal Zone is now transferred to 14th Int. A.P.O. #829, c/o Postmaster, New Orleans, La.

I noticed by this morning's paper that Edward D. Johnson, who is assistant State horticulturist, gave a talk on winter decorations and making wreaths, fir centerpieces, etc., to the Bar Harbor Garden Club. If I remember correctly he does this every year for many clubs and gatherings and I always wished I could manage to listen in but so far I haven't.

Seems to me it is about time that I heard from the Edward M. Engel family—wouldn't a newsy letter be in line?

I met Sally Palmer Bogan down town last week, and also Annette Mathews. Wish I could see and hear from more of us.

This is a full-time job trying to collect items for this column, for as yet no one has cooperated and sent me any letters or cards. I did have a letter from a Colby grad friend of mine giving me information about two of our classmates. John Clark joined the Navy in June and completed his training at Pensacola the last of September. Then he was sent to Oakland, California, where he is now stationed as an Ensign. His wife and daughter Martha, age three, are with him and they are making their home in San Leandro. Albert Ellingson has recently been promoted to a full Lieut. in the Navy Air Corps, stationed at Jacksonville, Florida, as an instructor.

Virgie and Phil Rogers live at 12 Roberts St., Caribou. Phil teaches Agriculture and Military in the High School, and teaches five nights a week. He is also a 1st Lieut. in the State Guard. Jean Mitchell studied "Spacing," whatever that may be, and took a Civil Service Exam, coming out on top, and now works in Boston. How about some details, Jean?

Captain and Mrs. Dick Healey announce the birth of a son, James Sumner, on November 8th, their third son. Congratulations! Dick was home for a few days' leave recently, from Camp Croft, South Carolina.

I saw a letter recently in the Bangor Daily News from Corporal Morris Rubin, who states that he is now getting a slightly receding hair line! His address is Co. D, 16th Arm'd Engr. Bn., APO No. 251, care Postmaster, New York City. He is stationed abroad.

The middle of October Marge Lynds Cotting and little son Peter traveled from Kittery, Maine, to join Lieut. "Dunc" in California. Their address is: Lieut. and Mrs. Duncan Cotting, 7th M. P. Co., 7th Mtzd. Div., A.P.O. #7, Camp San Luis Obispo, California.

I have seen Kay Rowe a number of times. We had a gathering of '38ers at her family's summer home in Winterport. The group consisted of Kay, Sarah Littlefield, Mary-Helen Raye, Mary Deering Wirths, Polly Drummond Powell, '39, and myself. We later gathered on another occasion at Mary Wirth's home, or I should say the home of her parents in Orono, before Mary went back to New York. Kay is still a Laboratory Technician at the Eastern Maine General Hospital in Bangor. I might say here that Mary-Helen received her M.A. degree in Zoology from the University of Michigan in 1941.

I have seen Rose Whitmore. She is still with the advertising department in Freese's store, and her address is Fourth St., Bangor, but I don't know the number.

Don Kelley was the only member of our class whom I saw at homecoming, that is, all who came from any farther away than Bangor. I found out that he lives on Beacon St., Boston, and has been building ships for three years and is engaged, but I could not pump any details out of him concerning these matters!

The State Series has come and gone since the last issue of the Alumnus and we can't be anything but proud of the way our old team played! I saw the Colby-Maine game and what a pleasure it was to see a Maine team in a decisive win over the powerful Colby. After the game I had the opportunity to see a few members of our class. Many more were there in spirit, I'm sure. Betty Libby says that her headquarters are still in Bangor. She and Barb Welch were at the game together. Barb is teaching in Millinocket again this year. Marianne Russell Fellows was at the Alumni Tea in North Estabrooke. She and her husband, Frank, are in Bangor still. Carl Osgood was there and would like to hear from Jerry Schmidt. If you get this copy of the Alumnus, Jerry, perhaps you will let us know where you are located at present.

A letter from Paul Patterson written on the eve of the Colby-Maine game shows us that he was one member of our class back at the University in spirit although his address at the time was Army Air Force Pre-Flight School—Bombardier-Navigator—Ellington Field, Texas. Paul expected to be going to advanced Navigation Flight School soon after writing the letter. Miss Patterson (Helen Marion London) is with him in Texas.

I have just finished reading a letter from Peggy Hauck I add to Maiv Upham Craven. Peggy has been seeing lots of Maine people at Camp Croft in South Carolina lately. Mal Loring and his wife called on the Ladds, also Bud Robbins—married recently to a Chicago girl—now stationed at Croft. Bill Talbot and Becky Hill, married recently in Machias, are at Camp Croft at present also. Peggy also wrote that Maynard Files was on Foreign Duty.

Hal Bronsdon writes from the Canal Zone that he sees Charlie Weaver quite often. Charlie has a brother in the same area. It's good of you fellows to write, I do enjoy hearing from you and passing along information—non-military of course! I should include here a nice letter from Stanley Gates who is at the Ordnance Training Center, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland. Stanley is a new 2nd Lieutenant and announced his engagement to Miss Priscilla Candy, a Westbrook Junior College girl. Doc Gerrish, 1st Lieutenant, is at Aberdeen now, also. Stanley writes that Earl Potter is about to go into the Army. Earl has announced his engagement to Charlotte White, '41. Frank Smith received his commission at the same time as Stanley.

Ruth McClelland writes that she is in the Army with rest of 'em. She is one of three dictitians with the Yale Unit Hospital. At present they are waiting for foreign duty as is evident by the address: R McClelland D-1150 39th General Hospital, APO 3284 c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, California. Like everyone in the Army, Ruth would appreciate letters!

To add to your list of weddings: Edith Hurley to Sgt Philip E Hoyt in Skowhegan, November 16th. Edith has been employed as statistician for the General Electric Co in Lynn, Mass. Sgt Hoyt is stationed with the Coast Artillery at Portland.

Elizabeth Sullivan and Pvt William P Anderson, of Rochester, N Y, were married in Bangor last May 4th. Pvt Anderson was graduated from Cook's Academy and attended the Rochester Business Institute. He is stationed at the U S Army Air Base, Dow Field, Bangor.

1941 Next Reunion, 1946

My mail-box was quite empty this month. You realize, of course, that I can't continue this column without a little cooperation from you. O K? A very important little piece of news is Margaret David Chandler, born on September 30th to Anna and Bill Chandler. The three Chandlers are at home in Ridgewood, New Jersey, very happy and very proud.

Becky Hill and Bill Talbot were married on the twenty-second of October at her home in Machias. Bill is a Lieutenant in the Army, stationed now at Camp Croft. Becky has been employed by Seagram's in Louisville, Kentucky, prior to the big event.

I was pleased to receive the addresses of several service men. Won't each of you try to write to at least one of them? If you will, I'll gladly struggle along for one more month without any items. Is it a deal?

Lt Joshua B. Montgomery 0-661016, 83rd Bomb Sqdn, 12th Bomb Group, APO 1227 2886A, c/o Postmaster, New York City

A nice card from Alfred Mann (No, I haven't been accused of stealing any Allahs lately!) tells me that he was married on June 13th to Doris Ruth Mescive of Portland. Doris attended Deering High School and Gorham Normal. The Manns are living in Belmar, New Jersey, 1304 L Street. Al is a Radio Engineer with the Signal Corps Radar Lab. He also gives me Don Goodchild's address: 0-413651, 28th Coast Artillery, APO 877, c/o Postmaster, New York City

Lt Lawrence B. Kelley is at the University of Maine, serving as an instructor in military science and tactics

Bill Babel came across with a grand letter. Bill and his wife, Robbie (a graduate of the E.M.C.H.) are out in Madison, Wisconsin, where Bill is studying at the University for his Doctorate. Have you learned to say the customary "the thesis ceaseth and that sufficeth me" yet? There is also a little Babel (not a pun!) who bears the name Ann, plus the more descriptive nickname of "Punch." Their address is 1314 St James Court, Madison

From Belmont, North Carolina, Marion Miller writes that she has charge of the testing laboratory at the Hatch Full-Fashioned Hosiery Co. Got any spare Nylons, Marion? Her address is just in care of the company for which she works. And she adds that if she receives the address of any Maine boys stationed near there she will see what she can do to keep up the morale

Kay Boyle Harris and Norm are now living on College Road in Orono, c/o Dr Edith Patch. From all reports, bouncing young Christopher is a bee-yootiful lad

George Ellis, 1st Lieutenant, dropped in for a brief moment on a flying trip from Camp Roberts to Maine. (He did take the time to change our door-card, weather-beaten and dog-eared, to a nice fresh one.) George is company commander of Company D, 77th Infantry Training Battalion. He told us that Brooks Brown is married but I didn't have time to get the details

My roomie, Hilda Rowe, has received a nice promotion at Filene's which carries the ponderous title of Staff Assistant to the Merchandise Manager. All I can tell you about it is that it keeps her busy enough so that dinner often gets cold!

Olive M. Chick is teaching at Camden. Esther Drummond is again at Bucksport. What about some of the rest of you? Betty Mack, are you still at Eastport?

Unless I hear from some of you soon, I will insert an ad in place of this column: Lost, strayed or stolen, about four hundred people, presumably all with broken arms.

Bye now,

1942 Next Reunion, 1944

The end of our first fall and I'll bet you were remembering with me how good were football games, gym dances, and seeing each other around the campus, and in classes. Had a taste of it last weekend when I saw Maine and Bowdoin play for the state title. It was a wonderful game, and I wished then that all of you could have had the fun of being there, too. It was good to see Nancy Philbrook, Jane Page, Violet Hamilton, Winona Robinson Gay, and Ike Downes and a great many of the undergraduates

Wartime readjustments . . . #3

MONKEY-WRENCHES don't mean much to Mother. Father is sure the old sewing machine can be spared! Salvage is sometimes painful—but, besides aiding war production, it has its helpful side in the home.

It shows what we can do without. It teaches the difference between little luxuries and big necessities.

The same sort of adjustment, applied to income, puts taxes, War Bonds and life insurance at the top of the list. Both taxes and bonds advance the war effort directly. Life insurance does the same thing indirectly—since much of your premium dollar is reinvested in Government bonds. Life insurance also protects your family at a time when they need protection more than ever before!

Life insurance is the safest, surest property you can own—and it has a guaranteed value that doesn't vary. The liberal New England Mutual contract even helps finance itself if the need arises! Ask one of our Career Underwriters how it's done.

Here are some of the advantages of a New England Mutual contract

1. DIVIDENDS begin at the end of the first year.
2. CASH VALUES begin at the end of the second year.
3. A PREMIUM LOAN is available toward payment of the second annual premium.
4. CONVERSION to Retirement Income or higher premium plans requires the payment of difference in reserves only.

Here's help with insurance salvage!

Metal scrap may cause family scraps—but the problem is not nearly so tough or technical as another kind of salvage—savings salvage. Most families make their largest investment in life insurance—and too often endanger that investment by sudden decisions.

If you must adjust your insurance program, get sound advice first. Talk to any of the men listed below. They're alumni of your college and they talk your language. They are also trained representatives of the First Mutual Life Insurance Company Chartered in America.

Out of their experience you'll get practical, constructive suggestions. They'll help you make the most of your limited life insurance dollars—help you protect your present policies with premium loans if necessary.

Check your protection now when you need it most. If none of these men is near you, you can get similar service at the New England Mutual office in your city.

* With U. S. Armed Forces

We're making readjustments, too. With some 15% of our field force now in military service, we have real opportunities for able men in several cities.

If you're interested in a career where you can be your own boss—and if your draft status is reasonably assured—we'd like to talk things over. Or perhaps you have a friend who might appreciate the tip.

In either case, just write to Wm. Eugene Hays, 501 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., for information. There's no obligation, of course.
